Press for Suite(s)

“Aurally arresting, [Suite(s) is] certainly one of the best things I’ve heard this year, and with the right kind of nurturing the band could reveal themselves to really stand amongst the likes of British legends such as Radiohead.” - The Line of Best Fit

<http://www.thelineofbestfit.com/2009/12/ex-libras-suites/>

*“This is progressively ambient music with a taste for the unexpected.”
Track of the Day - Classic Rock*

“Suite(s) will represent for many an exhilarating accomplishment in exploring post-rock boundaries.” - The 405

<http://thefourohfive.com/reviews/1342>

“Suite(s), their debut LP, is the sound of a city slowed down, of a pre-morning twilight where revellers descend from their highs and commuters are yet to stir.” - Drowned in Sound

<http://drownedinsound.com/releases/14964/reviews/4138587?ticker>

*“Their sound is humbling, captivating and truly worthy.”

"The most remarkable thing that the band have accomplished is to make the formerly slick, charming and breathtaking original record sound presumptuous and disorderly. This was perhaps not their intention, but it is certainly a testament to their development as artists." - This Is Fake DIY

"..a rainy day punctuated by the ray of light in Amit Sharma's tense voice." - The Line of Best Fit

<http://www.thelineofbestfit.com/2010/10/ex-libras-cuts/>

"A quick warning, the keys on 'There's Still Room For Love' ('Radar') are so peaceful yet beautifully constructed the urge to hug strangers and run naked through stations may become too much to hold back." - Contact Music

<http://www.contactmusic.com/new/home.nsf/review/ex-libras-cuts-ep>

"Their ability to bring new elements into their music makes for a more fulfilling EP." - The 405

<http://thefourohfive.com/reviews/2536>

"The arrangements on tracks like 'Teenage Eyes', and in general throughout the entire EP, display an achingly dramatic yet emotionally charged approach to song-writing and reinterpretation."
