Ed Patrick Nothing Personal

Artist: Ed Patrick

Single: Nothing Personal

Release: 10th September 2021

For fans of: Andrew Bird, Stu Larsen, Passenger, Old Sea Brigade

Growing up on the south coast of England, surrounded by his father's old blues records and mother's Laurel Canyon songbooks, Ed Patrick seemed destined for the music industry. Having left school at the tender age of 16, Ed worked in his local guitar shop earning enough money to buy a one way ticket to North America. Ed's journey in developing his intimate style of songwriting was only just beginning.

Travelling throughout the country on Greyhound busses, Ed sought out his favourite guitar players' numbers, intent on learning from the musicians he'd grown up listening to and who had graced the musical landscape of 70s and 80s US radio. The results have been impressive with Ed going onto release a string of singles and EPs amassing over 17 million streams on Spotify, picking up a myriad of playlist additions as well as support from the likes of BBC Introducing.

Now, Ed has returned with another poignant single as he prepares to unveil, Nothing Personal. Embracing his trademark bittersweet lyricism exploring heartbreak and loss, allied to an autumnal, rustic musicianship, Nothing Personal is another wistful offering. Gently strummed guitar is accented beautifully by sumptuous, delicate tracked vocals, delivered with Ed's characteristic sense of yearning.

Nothing Personal, follows on from the success of last year's double single release 'You In My Life/Shoulder'. Ed's ability to neatly combine classic musicianship with contemporary soundscapes has also seen him featured on Apple Music Breaking Songwriter playlist as well as his work appearing on HBO's New Amsterdam and Marie Claire.

Nothing Personal is out on 10th September 2021.
