Indie-pop newcomers Stereo Club prepare to release their vibrant debut single Parma Violet Gin on 25th June 2021.

Produced by Jim Lowe (Stereophonics, The Charlatans, Nick Cave), Parma Violet Gin combines elements of surf-rock and dream-pop in a hook-filled track which introduces a never before heard take on indie music. With their debut single, Stereo Club hope to captivate listeners with their colourful West Coast vibes and a sound that is undeniably refreshing and perfectly timed for the summer months.

Cardiff-based Stereo Club formed in early 2021 and consist of Ines Duarte (vocals, guitar, keys), Dan Waggon (bass, keys) and Ben Morris (drums, percussion). Talking about the single, the band says, "it's based around a group of kids fantasising about achieving their dreams. The song takes the listener on a journey with the characters; from growing up in the suburbs of their hometown, to performing on the world's biggest stages and drinking colourful cocktails."

Parma Violet Gin is out on 25th June 2021.
